

Communications and External Relations

Department policy: Links and resources page

Jon Covell, 17/10/11
Version 2

The ICO website includes a Links and resources page, which lists links to a range of other organisations' websites in alphabetical order.

Here are some factors the ICO will use to assess the suitability of prospective links.

Usefulness and relevance

The sites listed on the Links and resources page should provide information and/or services that are relevant to the work of the ICO, and useful to ICO website visitors.

Commercial websites

We do not link to sites that are solely commercial.

Sites that provide training

The ICO does not provide training and cannot endorse training schemes by external organisations. Therefore, we do not include sites that provide training, commercial or otherwise on the Links & resources page.

The ICO follows this policy to make sure it consistently accepts or refuses to link to other organisations' websites.