

13 January 2010

ICO statement on Guardian newspaper correction

The Guardian newspaper has corrected an inaccurate article. Monday's Guardian ('Campbell had Iraq dossier changed to fit US claims', 11 January, page 7) noted that the Information Commissioner accidentally released documents to a reporter. This was incorrect and the Guardian's correction appears in today's paper and online.

The Information Commissioner, Christopher Graham said:

"Organisations can have confidence that when they share confidential information with the ICO it stays confidential. I am glad that The Guardian has corrected their inaccurate story."

The Guardian's correction can be viewed at <http://www.guardian.co.uk/theguardian/2010/jan/13/corrections-clarifications>.

For all media enquires, please contact the ICO press office on 0207 025 7580